Present law allows a lottery preference for enrollment at elementary and middle schools for students residing within defined geographic zones as a factor to determine student assignment, according to policies adopted by the board.

Present law further provides such preference shall be applied to not more than one-half of the seats available in each grade level and that a charter school authorized on or prior to July 1, 2016, may maintain any existing geographic preferences.

Proposed law increases the lottery preference for students residing within the defined geographic zones to not more than seventy-five percent of the seats available in each grade level.
