 Provides relative to power-based violence on college and university campuses. (gov sig)

Present law provides for the "Campus Accountability and Safety Act." Proposed law replaces "sexually-oriented offense" with "power-based violence," defined as sexual harassment, sexual assault, domestic violence, dating violence, and stalking. Requires each college or university campus police department to submit sexually-oriented criminal offense data to each institution's chancellor and Title IX coordinator, and for the report to be posted on the institution's website annually by February 15. Requires any responsible employee who receives information or witnesses an incident of power-based violence to report to the institution's Title IX coordinator. Establishes specific administrative reporting requirements for the Title IX coordinator to submit information to the chancellor of the institution no less than once every three months. Provides immunities from civil and criminal liabilities, and disciplinary actions by the institution, for persons acting in good faith who report or assist in the investigation of a report of an incident. Provides for termination or disciplinary actions if an employee knowingly fails to make a report or makes a report that is knowingly false. (Bill summary continued on page two)

EXPENDITURE EXPLANATION

There will be an indeterminable increase in expenditures for the Board of Regents (BOR) to update and expand an annual training program for prevention and response to incidents of power-based violence. BOR anticipates contracting with a third-party to develop training and inform best practices. Although potential costs are still being evaluated, BOR expects it will be able to absorb such costs within its existing budget.

Post-secondary education institutions may experience increased costs (potentially significant) to the extent they require additional personnel and resources to address reports of power-based violence, however this indeterminable. For illustrative purposes, an estimated cost related to hiring a Title IX Campus Compliance and Coordinator is $65,000 ($45,000 salary and $20,000 benefits). Due to the number of institutions currently evaluating existing Title IX staffing levels, the LFO is unable to determine or validate the staffing level necessary to comply with the proposed measure. It is unknown to what extent any increased workload would result from institutional determinations of Title IX compliance needs, or due to increased reporting associated with this measure. Additional costs associated with the proposed legislation may be absorbable, either wholly or partially, using existing staff and resources. However, this capacity will vary by institution.

REVENUE EXPLANATION

There is no anticipated direct material effect on governmental revenues as a result of this measure.

Provides for confidentiality of the identity of an alleged victim. Prohibits retaliation against employees who make a report or cooperate with an investigation, disciplinary process, or judicial proceeding. Present law requires each institution and law enforcement agency within the parish of the campus to enter into a memorandum of understanding to delineate responsibilities and share information. Proposed law requires each executed memorandum of understanding to be signed by all parties, and repeals provision in current law that institutions shall not be held liable if the law enforcement agency refuses to enter into the a memorandum of understanding. Proposed law requires the Board of Regents (BOR) to determine an adequate number of confidential advisors annually, and for such advisors to receive training annually. Present law provides for a training program for certain individuals involved in responding to reports of sexually oriented criminal offenses. Proposed law requires such training to be conducted annually, changes reference to "power-based violence," and expands the individuals for which such training is to be provided. Requires the BOR to annually review and revise as needed the annual training program. Requires each chancellor to compile and submit a report to the institution's board of supervisors by January 10 of each year regarding compliance with training and reporting requirements, and for each system president to submit a system-wide report to the board of supervisors by January 15 of each year. Proposed law compels the BOR Uniform Policy on Sexual Assault to require that institutions communicate with one another regarding the transfer of any student against whom a complaint has been reported to the Title IX coordinator and to withhold transcripts until such investigation and adjudication is complete. Requires information and instruction to students on reporting power-based offenses. Requires institutions to publish results of anonymous power-based violence climate surveys on their websites. Provides for institution chancellors and system presidents to certify compliance with proposed law annually.
