EXPENDITURE EXPLANATION

There is no anticipated direct material effect on governmental expenditures as a result of this measure. Currently, all sheriffs and 14 municipal police departments have AFIS machines or print stations. There are 270 small and rural municipal police departments that do not have AFIS machines or print stations. These agencies typically transport the arrested individual to the local jail or prison for fingerprinting and booking. If there is no fingerprint system available at the local prison, the proposed law provides an exception to the duty of municipal police offices to fingerprint. Therefore, local municipal police offices will not need to purchase automated fingerprint identification systems (AFIS) or a print station under this proposed measure.

REVENUE EXPLANATION

There is no anticipated direct material effect on governmental revenues as a result of this measure.
