EXPENDITURE EXPLANATION

There may be increased costs for local school districts, charter schools and non-public schools associated with the dissemination of the required information. These costs are not anticipated to be significant and will vary across districts based on the distribution methodology, i.e. whether such information is printed and mailed, or brought home by the student, or whether it can be delivered electronically.

The Departments of Health states there will be no fiscal impact to provide the information required as they currently produce such materials. There are no anticipated costs for the Department of Education.

REVENUE EXPLANATION

There is no anticipated direct material effect on governmental revenues as a result of this measure.
