HB 831 Engrossed

2022 Regular Session

Firment

Abstract: Provides for additional living expense coverage for homeowner's insurance.

Proposed law provides that in the event of a covered total loss to an insured dwelling caused by a covered peril, if the insured has additional living expense coverage, the insurer shall, upon request by an insured, render an advance payment equal to the estimated value of 3 months of increased cost of living expenses required for the members of the household to maintain their normal standard of living.

Proposed law provides that payments of additional living expense coverage, after the advance period, shall be payable upon submission of satisfactory proof of loss, if it is determined that the actual cost of incurred additional living expenses exceeds the amount previously advanced.

Proposed law provides that an insurer may restrict payment in cases of suspected fraud.

Summary of Amendments Adopted by House

The Committee Amendments Proposed by House Committee on Insurance to the original bill:

1. Specify that for the provisions of proposed law to apply, the total loss must be covered by the policy and caused by a peril covered by the policy.
2. Change the advance payment amount of additional living expense coverage from no less than 3 months of such coverage to an amount equal to the estimated value of 3 months of increased cost of living expenses required for the members of the household to maintain their normal standard of living.
3. Specify that further payments of additional living expense coverage shall be payable upon submission of satisfactory proof of loss, if it is determined that the actual cost of incurred additional living expenses exceed the amount advanced.
4. Provide that insurers may restrict advance payments in cases of suspected fraud.
