TELECOMMUNICATIONS: Exempts certain video programming from franchise fees

Synopsis of Senate Amendments

1. Makes technical changes.

Digest of Bill as Finally Passed by Senate

Present law defines "cable service" as the one-way transmission to subscribers of video programming or other programming service and any subscriber interaction required for the selection or use of video programming or other programming service. Present law excludes video programming provided by a commercial mobile service provider from the definition of "cable service".

Proposed law retains the exclusion for video programming provided by a commercial service provider from the definition of "cable service" and specifies that video programming accessed via a service that enables users to access content, information, email, or other services offered over the internet, including streaming content is excluded.

Present law defines "video service" as video programming services provided through wireline facilities located at least in part in the public rights of way without regard to delivery technology, including internet protocol technology. Present law excludes video programming by a commercial mobile service provider and video programming provided as part of a service enabling users to access information over the internet from the definition of "video service".

Proposed law retains present law but specifies that direct-to-home satellite services as defined in federal law are excluded from the definition of "video service" and specifies that streaming content is included in the video programming that is excluded from the definition of "video service".

Effective upon signature of governor or lapse of time for gubernatorial action.
