SB 35 Original	DIGEST 2024 Regular Session	Morris
----------------	--------------------------------	--------

Present law provides that when a litigious right is assigned, the debtor may extinguish his obligation by paying to the assignee the price the assignee paid for the assignment, with interest from the time of the assignment.

Present law provides that a right is litigious, for that purpose, when it is contested in a suit already filed.

Present law provides that the debtor may not thus extinguish his obligation when the assignment has been made to a co-owner of the assigned right, or to a possessor of the thing subject to the litigious right.

Proposed law retains present law but includes extinguishing an obligation when the assignment is of a promissory note or other debt instrument.

Effective August 1, 2024.
