EXPENDITURE EXPLANATION

This proposed legislation may increase governmental expenditures by an indeterminable amount related to court costs associated with judicial workload, time and attendance (presence of judges, clerks, bailiffs, counsel, etc.) in order to review additional evidence to support the finding of domestic abuse. The Legislative Fiscal Office cannot determine the number of domestic abuse suits that would require addition judgments for exemplary (punitive) damages as a result of this measure. Proposed legislation allows the courts to award a new category of damages (exemplary damages) to a victim of domestic abuse. Presently, state law provides that exemplary damages may be awarded to those forced into acts of child pornography, sexually assaulted while a minor or injured by a drunk driver.

REVENUE EXPLANATION

There is no anticipated direct material effect on governmental revenues as a result of this measure.
