

Existing law requires law enforcement officers to determine if the owner or lessee of each motor vehicle stopped at an administrative violations checkpoint, a motor vehicle accident, or in connection with an alleged violation of the law has evidence of the required compulsory motor vehicle liability security contained in the vehicle.

New law retains existing law and further requires law enforcement officers to electronically verify, as applicable within his capability, that such documents are current.

Effective if and when House Bill No. 872 of the 2014 R.S. is enacted and becomes effective.
