EXPENDITURE EXPLANATION

the Department estimates approximately $35,000 of tax system design, modification, and testing, as well as taxpayer education/inquiries.

REVENUE EXPLANATION

The Department of Revenue recalculated tax year 2014 corporate income tax returns applying the rates proposed by this bill to generate a new aggregate tax table liability (before tax credits). This new liability was compared to actual tax table liabilities on those returns. The resulting reduction in tax liabilities was $168 million.

If it is assumed that the constitutional amendment referenced in the bill is one that eliminates the requirement for the deduction of federal income taxes paid from gross income (and the statutory provisions of that deduction are repealed), the recalculation of 2014 returns results in an increase of tax liabilities of $97 million.

The Department of Revenue makes assumptions concerning how these liability changes might be realized over different fiscal years beginning in FY18 and extending through FY20 of 5% in FY18, 84% in FY19, and 100% in FY20 and beyond. Filers may change their quarterly estimated payments and the overpayments they typically carry forward each year. Thus, estimates of specific fiscal year revenue losses are highly uncertain. In addition, the fundamental volatility of the reported corporate tax base from year to year makes the results of simulation analysis highly unreliable for the purposes of budgeting in particular fiscal years.
