HB 302 Reengrossed

2017 Regular Session

Lance Harris

Abstract: Increases the maximum amount of the monthly fee for parole supervision and provides relative to the use of the funds received from the increase.

Present law authorizes the committee on parole to impose certain conditions or requirements on a person who is released on parole including the requirement that the person pay a fee to the Dept. of Public Safety and Corrections in an amount not to exceed $63, based upon the offender's ability to pay as determined by the committee on parole.

Proposed law increases the maximum amount of the fee from $63 to $100, and further provides that only those persons released on parole who are employed as determined by the Dept. of Public Safety and Corrections, division of probation and parole, must pay the fee.

Proposed law provides that beginning on the effective date of the proposed law and each year thereafter, the funds received from the proposed increase in the amount of supervision fees will be dedicated to the recruitment and retention of adult probation and parole officers without the supplanting of any budget funds used for those purposes.
