DIGEST
SB 124 Engrossed 2022 Regular Session Abraham

Present law requires compulsory school attendance.

Present law requires the parent or legal guardian of a child who is attending an approved home study program or a nonpublic school not seeking state approval to report the attendance of the child in such program or school to the state Department of Education (DOE). Present law only requires the parent to submit the number of children in attendance at the nonpublic school not seeking approval for attendance purposes.

Proposed law retains present law. Proposed law requires the parent to submit the name, date of birth, and physical address when reporting attendance.

Proposed law further requires DOE to immediately upon receipt of a report of attendance or an application for an approved home study program to notify the city, parish, or other public school system in which the child was most recently enrolled, and, if different, the public school system of the public school which the child's home address is located of the attendance or application. Further defines "immediately".

Proposed law also provides that DOE shall not record such a child as a dropout attributable to the public school where he was most recently enrolled or to the public school which he would otherwise attend, unless the child is subsequently enrolled in and attends the public school.

Proposed law provides that no city, parish, or other local public school system shall be responsible for ensuring the attendance of such students, even if such application or report of attendance is not resubmitted each year to the department, unless and until the parent subsequently enrolls the child in a public school under the authority of the school system.

Effective upon signature of the governor or lapse of time for gubernatorial action.
