SB 423 Original

DIGEST
2024 Regular Session

Morris

Present law provides that the legislature recognizes that it is essential to the maintenance of a democratic society that public business be performed in an open and public manner, and that the citizens be advised of and be aware of the performance of public officials and the deliberations and decisions that go into making public policy. Toward this end, the provisions of present law shall be construed liberally so as to facilitate, rather than hinder, access to public records.

Present law further provides that present law shall not prevent any person from inspecting, examining, copying, or obtaining an electronic or physical reproduction of any record pertaining to any money or monies, any assets or items of economic value to the state, or any financial transactions in the control of or handled by or through the governor or the office of the governor.

Present law provides that except as otherwise provided in present law, any person of the age of majority may inspect, copy, or reproduce any public record. Further provides that except as otherwise provided by present law, any person may obtain a copy or reproduction of any public record.

Present law provides that for the purposes of present law, the term "person" does not include an individual in custody after sentence following a felony conviction who has exhausted his appellate remedies when the request for public records is not limited to grounds upon which the individual could file for post-conviction relief under present law.

Present law provides that the attorney general shall establish a program for educating the general public, public bodies, and custodians regarding the provisions of the Public Records Law. Further provides that the program may include brochures, pamphlets, videos, seminars, and internet access to information which provides training on the provisions of the Public Records Law, including the custodian's responsibilities in connection with a request for records, the possibility that information submitted to a public body may become public record pursuant to the provisions of present law, and the right of a person to institute court proceedings if access to a record is denied by the custodian.

Present law provides that the custodian of records shall present any public record to any person of the age of majority who so requests. Further provides that the custodian shall make no inquiry of any person who applies for a public record, except an inquiry as to the age and identification of the person and may require the person to sign a register and shall not review, examine, or scrutinize any copy, photograph, or memoranda in the possession of any person; and shall extend to the person all reasonable comfort and facility for the full exercise of the right granted by present law.

Present law further provides that nothing shall prevent the custodian from maintaining vigilance as is required to prevent alteration of any record while it is being examined and provides further that examinations of records under the authority of present law must be conducted during regular office or working hours, unless the custodian authorizes examination of records in other than regular office or working hours.

Present law further provides that the custodian shall be permitted to make an inquiry regarding the specificity of the records sought by the applicant if, after review of the initial request, the custodian is unable to ascertain what records are being requested.

Present law provides that for all public records, except public records of state agencies, it shall be the duty of the custodian of the public records to provide copies to persons so requesting, unless the requestor fails to pay the applicable copying fees after being notified of the amount in advance of production or the requestor has an outstanding balance from a prior request.

Present law further provides the custodian may establish and collect reasonable fees for making copies of public records, which may include the transmission of electronic copies of public records. Further provides any custodian who elects to establish and collect fees shall establish a reasonable fee schedule and post the schedule where it can be readily accessed by the public and that the custodian may request payment of fees in advance of production.

Present law further provides that copies of records may be furnished without charge or at a reduced charge to indigent citizens of this state.

Present law provides that the use or placement of mechanical reproduction, microphotographic reproduction, or any other such imaging, reproduction, or photocopying equipment within the offices of the clerk of court by any person is prohibited unless ordered by a court of competent jurisdiction.

Present law provides that any person may request a copy or reproduction of any public record and it shall be the duty of the custodian to provide the copy or reproduction to the person so requesting.

Present law provides that for all public records of state agencies, it shall be the duty of the custodian of such records to provide copies to persons so requesting, unless the requestor fails to pay the applicable copying fees after being notified of the amount in advance of production or the requestor has an outstanding balance from a prior request.

Present law further provides that fees for copies of public records of state agencies shall be charged according to the uniform fee schedule adopted by the commissioner of administration, as provided by present law.

Present law further provides that copies of records may be furnished without charge or at a reduced charge to indigent citizens of this state or the persons whose use of such copies, as determined by the custodian, will be limited to a public purpose, including but not limited to use in a hearing before any governmental regulatory commission.

Present law provides that no fee shall be charged to any person to examine or review any public records, except as provided in present law, and that no fee shall be charged for examination or review to determine if a record is subject to disclosure, except as may be determined by a court of competent jurisdiction.

Present law provides that if the public record applied for is immediately available, because of its not being in active use at the time of the application, the public record shall be immediately presented to the authorized person applying for it.

Present law further provides that if the public record applied for is not immediately available, because of its being in active use at the time of the application, the custodian shall promptly certify this in writing to the applicant, and in his certificate shall fix a day and hour within three days, exclusive of Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays.

Present law provides that if any public record applied for by any authorized person is not in the custody or control of the person to whom the application is made, the person shall promptly certify this in writing to the applicant, and shall in the certificate state in detail to the best of his knowledge and belief, the reason for the absence of the record from his custody or control, its location, what person then has custody of the record and the manner and method in which, and the exact time at which it was taken from his custody or control. Further provides that the person shall include in the certificate ample and detailed answers to inquiries of the applicant which may facilitate the exercise of the right to public records.

Present law provides that any person who has been denied the right to inspect, copy, reproduce, or obtain a copy or reproduction of a record under the provisions of present law, either by a determination of the custodian or by the passage of five days, exclusive of Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays, from the date of his in-person, written, or electronic request without receiving a determination in writing by the custodian or an estimate of the time reasonably necessary for collection, segregation, redaction, examination, or review of a records request, may institute proceedings for the issuance of a writ of mandamus, injunctive or declaratory relief, together with attorney fees, costs and damages as provided for by present law, in the district court for the parish in which the office of the custodian is located.

Present law provides that if a person seeking the right to inspect, copy, or reproduce a record or to receive or obtain a copy or reproduction of a public record prevails in such suit, he shall be awarded reasonable attorney fees and other costs of litigation. Further provides that if the person prevails in part, the court may in its discretion award him reasonable attorney fees or an appropriate portion thereof.

Present law provides that if a public body or official brings a suit against a person based on the person's request to inspect, copy, or reproduce a record or to receive or obtain a copy or reproduction of a public record and the person prevails in the suit, the person shall be awarded reasonable attorney fees and other costs of litigation. Further provides if the person prevails in part, the court may in its discretion award the person reasonable attorney fees or an appropriate portion thereof.

Proposed law retains present law and requires any public record requestor to be a Louisiana citizen.
