	DIGEST
SB 55 Original	2025 Regular Session	Miller

Present law defines various terms related to the payment and collection procedure for property tax lien auctions and adjudicated property.

Proposed law modifies the definitions of the terms "acquiring person", "delinquent obligation", "owner", "tax auction party", "tax lien auction", "tax lien certificate", "tax sale certificate", and "termination price" and otherwise retains present law definitions.

Proposed law defines the term "face value" of a tax lien certificate as the total amount of the delinquent obligation at the time the tax lien certificate is issued. This shall include the delinquent statutory impositions and any interest and costs accruing prior to the issuance of the tax lien certificate but shall not include any penalty assessed pursuant to present law.

Proposed law defines the term "tax lien" as the right to receive payment of the delinquent obligation and includes the lien and privilege securing the delinquent obligation pursuant to present law.

Proposed law defines the term "tax lien certificate holder" as the purchaser of a tax lien and the purchaser's successors or assigns, provided that the tax lien has not been extinguished.

Present law provides for the termination of a tax lien or a tax lien certificate.

Proposed law changes the terminology from "termination of the tax lien" to "extinguishment of the tax lien" throughout present law.

Present law provides for the enforcement of a tax lien certificate.

Proposed law changes the terminology from "tax lien certificate" to "tax lien".

Present law requires that any delinquent statutory impositions bear interest from the day after taxes were due until paid and provides the rate at which interest accrues.

Proposed law clarifies that interest continues to accrue until either the statutory impositions are paid, a tax lien certificate is issued for the delinquent obligation on immovable property, or the moveable property is sold pursuant to the provisions of present law.

Present law provides for the time and payment of taxes and also details how and when interest and penalties run on unpaid taxes.

Proposed law requires that a delinquent obligation be secured by a lien and privilege in accordance with the provisions present law. Further requires that the lien and privilege have priority over all other mortgages, liens, privileges, and other encumbrances and requires that all tax liens rank concurrently, regardless of when the statutory impositions become due or the tax lien certificates are recorded.

Present law allows the exclusion of delinquent obligations related to immovable property encumbered by a tax lien certificate issued to and held by a political subdivision from a tax lien auction at the election of the political subdivision. Further requires the tax collector to file a tax lien certificate in favor of the political subdivision in the mortgage records as soon as practical after being directed to do so by the political subdivision.

Proposed law relocates this provision but otherwise retains present law.

Present law requires the tax lien certificate holder to send notice to each tax lien auction party at least 180 days but no more than one year before bringing an action.

Proposed law amends the period of time to send notice to at least six months but no more than one year before bringing an action and otherwise retains present law.

Present law authorizes a tax lien certificate holder to make necessary repairs that are required to comply with the notice of order. Further authorizes a privilege on the immovable property to the tax lien certificate holder who makes the repairs.

Proposed law clarifies that the privilege arising due to repairs is effective against third persons once the privilege is filed in the mortgage records and is preferred in rank to all other mortgages, privileges, and other rights effective against third persons.

Present law disallows the eviction of a tax debtor who remains the owner and resident of the property subject to a tax lien certificate.

Proposed law clarifies that the tax lien certificate holder is also prohibited from charging rental or lease payments on the owner of occupants.

Present law requires a penalty of five percent of the price paid by the acquiring person plus five percent of amounts paid by the tax debtor and provides that the penalty accrues until the property is redeemed.

Proposed law clarifies that the penalty accrues until the property is redeemed, the tax lien is extinguished, or the debtor's interest is terminated.

Present law provides for the authentication of a sale or donation of property.

Proposed law replaces the term authenticate or authentication with the term execute or execution and otherwise retains present law.

Present law provides the process for the sale or donation of adjudicated property.

Proposed law requires that if the sale or donation terminates an interest established by a filing in the conveyance records then the affidavit of sale or donation must be filed in the conveyance records as well and otherwise retains present law.

Present law allows a certificate holder upon expiration of three years from the recordation of the tax lien certificate or 180 days after providing notice required under present law to petition a court seeking recognition of the delinquent obligation and tax lien and privilege.

Proposed law changes the requirement from 180 days after providing notice to six months after providing notice, requires the petition to name each owner of the property as a defendant, and otherwise retains present law.

Proposed law authorizes the governing body of a political subdivision by ordinance to donate adjudicated property to any person as allowed under present constitution. Further authorizes the donated property to only be used as allowed by present constitution.

Proposed law makes technical changes to update and standardize terminology and otherwise retains present law.

Applicable to taxable periods beginning on or after January 1, 2026.

Effective on January 1, 2026.
