

Existing law provides for the specific grounds on which certain sex offenders convicted of felony carnal knowledge or crime against nature may petition the court, or file a motion in the court, for relief from the sex offender registration and notification requirements. Existing law further provides for the procedures by which and the jurisdictions in which these petitions and motions may be filed.

New law retains existing law and provides that any petition for injunctive relief or for declaratory judgment regarding the registration and notification requirements as they apply to a particular offender, regardless of the date of conviction, which are based on theories of relief or grounds not specifically provided for in existing law, shall be filed through ordinary civil proceedings in the district court for the parish where the state capitol is situated.

Effective August 1, 2013.
