

RÉSUMÉ DIGEST

ACT 216 (HB 358)

2015 Regular Session

Schroder

Existing law authorizes the state veterinarian to place livestock in quarantine until the necessary inspections, tests, or epidemiological investigations have been completed.

New law expands the authority to quarantine in existing law to any animal used for research, after consultation with cognizant federal officials and agencies, until the disease risk has abated.

Effective Aug. 1, 2015.
